Bill of Lading Number	Warehouse delivery date	Delivery out date	SIT Expiration Date

Your property under the above Bill of Lading was delivered into our warehouse on the date shown above. A date to deliver your property back into your custody has not been scheduled and the temporary storage period specified on the Bill of Lading has passed or will pass shortly. This temporary storage period is called "Storage-in-Transit" or "SIT".

Our legal liability for the care, custody or control of your property will cease on the SIT expiration date. Consequently, we must issue you a new contract called a Warehouse Receipt or Storage Contract. This document identifies our continuing responsibility to care for your property.

Please review the terms and conditions of this document, noting the monthly storage charge and confirming the valuation of your property in case of loss or damage. This valuation option should be the same as chosen on the original Bill of Lading.

You must sign the document in the places indicated and return a signed copy to our office. Please keep a copy of the Warehouse Receipt/Storage Contract as well as this document in your records.

If there are any questions on the documents, or if you want us to deliver your property rather than agree to permanent storage, please contact _____ in our Customer Service Department at 800-###-####.
